MIDWAY TURNS 20

Illinois' largest residential moving company celebrates 20 years of service and success

Chicago, Ill. (October 26, 2006) – Midway Moving and Storage, Chicagoland's top-rated residential and commercial storage and relocation company, celebrates its 20th year. Founded in 1987 by Jerry Siegel, Midway began with one truck and two employees and has since grown into the state's largest residential moving company, completing more than 15,000 moves annually. The company's growth is guided by its commitment to serving customers, employees and the community, a mission that Siegel envisioned from the start.

“By investing in our own workforce through training and education, Midway is not only able to provide our clients with the best possible service, but also to give our employees the opportunity to better themselves and improve the communities around them,” Siegel said. “Midway's employee rosters are full of success stories, from director-level promotions to first-home purchases, and we are proud to have helped make them possible.”

Siegel's business philosophy has culminated in the development of a state-of-the-art Training Facility that will offer comprehensive job training to hundreds of low-income Chicago residents when it officially opens in Fall 2006. Partially funded by the City of Chicago, the center will create dozens of jobs, with its graduates finding employment both at Midway and other area moving companies.

For the past 20 years, Midway has donated a portion of every moving fee to local charities and provided free storage and transport for dozens of charitable events. Siegel and his staff are personally involved in a number of charitable organizations, including the Glass Slipper Project, CHA Holiday Initiative, Windows of Opportunity and Little City Foundation, for which Siegel was named Honorary Mayor in 2006.

Midway Moving and Storage has managed several high-profile relocations, including transporting voting machines for the Board of Elections, relocating Chicago Housing Authority's Cabrini Green residents and moving the internationally-acclaimed “Chicago Cows on Parade” summer art exhibition. Midway is also the Official Mover of the Chicago Bulls.

Midway Moving and Storage, Inc. is the number-one rated residential and commercial relocation and storage company in Chicagoland. The company is comprised of dedicated professionals, dedicated to providing superior service, accurate planning and cost-effective moving and storage services. Midway shows its commitment to the community by providing job opportunities and training and by supporting charitable organizations through donations and meaningful participation.
